Refere Hon. Judges Nelson and Betts.

THE MURDER OF ASA A. HAVENS—SENTENCE OF THE

June 2—Edward F. Douglas, James Clements, and Thomas Benson (color d), were placed at the bar to receive sentence for the murder of Asa A. Havens, second mate of the American bark Glem. The prisoners, Clements and Benson, had been recommended to mercy by the jury. All the prisoner looked very much crestfallen, though no way altered in personal appearance since their conviction.

The United States vs. Edward F. Deuglass, James Clements, and Thomas Benson—Motion for a new trial—Judge Nelson delivered the opinion. In this case the motion for a new trial is denied. It is proper to say that the judges de not altegether agree in respect to the polat made as to the right of the government to the qualified peremptory challenge; that is, the right to set aside a juro without cause, and to have him faulty excluded from the panel, unless exhausted by the challenges of the prisoners. If the jury list is exhausted before the panel is completed, it is admitted the juror thus set aside must be called, and serve unless challenged by the government for cause. This qualified right of challenges without cause, is the settled doctrine of the counton law, and has been recognized by the Supreme Court of the United States and practised upon in some of the circuits. The doubt that is raised arises under the act of July 20. 1840, which provides for the designation of juries to serve in the federal courts by ballot, lot, co-theater, and for the other courts are empower to make rules and regardle law courts are empower to make rules and regardle by the State laws, and the time of the signation and empanelling of juries to the low she designation and empanelling of juries to the low she designation and empanelling of juries to the low she designation and empanelling of juries to the low she designation and empanelling of juries to the low she designated the qualified right of challenge and which would exclude the qualified right of courts are supplied to the laws of the State regulating the right of challenge and the law of the State Regu whom you thus barbarously murdered without provocation—without fault on his part, or on the part of any of the officer; and, that each of you may be brought in penitence, and anguish of spirit earnestly to implore the forgiveness of Him who slone can pardon guilt; and redemy on from the cor demnation that awaits it in the world to come, to which you are hastening, unless frigiven. We have no right or authority to anticipate the action of the President of the United States upon an appeal to his clemency; but the consciousness of the crime you have committed and of the necessity as well as the justness of the officers and crews of our ships on the high cass, the great interests of commerce upon those seas everywhere concerned, the atroclous nature of the offeces and character of the nation, all conspire to urge a rigorous and inexorable execution of the law. The whole powers of the government will ever be exerted to punish and suppress piracy and murders. Even had you been successful in your designs—in slanghtering the officers, and the faithful of your comrades, and in usurping piratically the command of the ship—you would still not have escaped. The stern powers of the government would have met you on every ocean, and in every bay, harbor and inlet. The wind and compass would have carried you to no quarters of the globe where you would not have been met with the stars and stripes of the flag you had stained with blood. Success would have but added to the aggravation of your guilt; for escape from the vengeance of the law would have been impossible. There woulderable existing the preciously, upon the enormity of your guilt during the period allotted to you in this life, always remembering that however wicked and atrocious it may be, there is abundant forgiveness in the world beyond this, where you will shortly appear, to all those who shall seek it with a broken and contrib heart, and with penitence, and deep sorrow for their sins. It only remains for us to promote the sentence of the law—hich is that each of yo

Banum's Museum and Menagenie drew an immense crowd of spectators yesterday. They will continue their exhibitions every day this week, morning, afternoon and evening, at the corner of Astor Place and Eighth street. Those who wish to obtain admittance, should be on hand at an early hour. The performances of General Tom Thumb, and a view of the elephants are worth a quarter, as the rest of the exhibition may be considered as a gratuitous addition.

Basica's.—There is no place like the Museum—so say both old and young of town and city. We consider it a good deal so for here all is novelty, order, unity, and that too of the first order. Throughout the wholeof yesterday the Museum was fairly througed with persons, and we don't know where we have seen a programme so successfully received before at any place of amusement. The same bill will be repeated to-day—"The Teacher Taught," and "The Wool Dealer," in the afternoon. In the evening, the fine capital drama—"Charles XII," and "The Old Guard."

WORKING SAILS BY A STEAM ENGINE.—A ship called the Medora is about to sail from Glasgow, Scotland, for San Francisco, which has on board a small steam engine, intended to weigh the anchor, pump ship, hoist the topsails, and do any other hard hauling that may be required in addition to hoisting out and in cargo. It is placed upon deck near the fore hatchway, and is covered by an erection about as large as a cook's galley.
